Mount St. Mary's College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin, age or handicap in the administration of its admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, or in its educational programs.

ON THE COVER: The studio shot by Roger Marshutz freezes the action on Michelle Johndrow and Christine Reichert, physical therapy majors when they aren't out on the real ski slopes. Johndrow is from Tucson, Reichert from Lompoc; both are returning to campus on time for evening ski trips to Big Bear, in late January.

The Mammoth Ski Extravaganza, though, waits for February 16–19 and prays for deep snow. Led by residents' president Ursula Strephens, from Wickenberg, and sponsored by residence hall assistants at Chalon, ski devotees will shuttle up to rented condos and have themselves a sno-ball.

Welcome to Sister Karen M. Kennelly

It was quiet on the hill when Sister Karen M. Kennelly arrived from Minnesota last fall to assume her office as the Mount's 10th college president. The weather was summery and the place seemed almost rural, 1200 Mount students divided between two campuses, after the 2500 students on a single campus back at the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul.

But the quiet passed quickly. "I asked the students to come up with ideas for our interaction," says Sister; and almost immediately her office was the scene of multiple interactions, from interviews about her ideas on euthanasia to a student round table on feminine styles of leadership.

"I had a Huntley-Brinkley-type visit from Andrea Vine, the CSNA president (California Student Nursing Association)—with news and commentary on the problems of the homeless and their own response and responsibility," Sister Karen reported.

Vine told us later she was there to give the new president a background on the nursing department, and the purposes of their organization. Every year the CSNA chapters nationwide pick a theme for their community health project. In '89–'90 it is The Homeless. "But we didn't do our drive just for that," says Vine. "After all, Los Angeles is the homeless capital of the country." Students from the 50-member nursing group told Sister Karen they hope to do a similar drive in the spring and, they felt "she was very supportive."

Further visits to the pres-

Right after the very final final-exam before Christmas holidays, these 13 finished-up students were stopped as they were—practically at sundown on the Doheny campus. Their faces reflect an assortment of purpose-bent associate, bachelor, or masters degree women who'll be back for the spring term, January 22 to May 11. ident's office were more visual. Sister saw snapshots taken by Chalon's African-American Council for Women of a Halloween party where they supplied toys and sweets, and wildly costumed entertainment (themselves)—at Shriner's Hospital.

It was the AACW, a newly recognized group on campus, who then asked the tough question. Would Sister Karen—tall, soft-spoken, dignified and above all, New (this is her first appointment as a college president)... would she be so kind as to dress up and play Mrs. Santa for the council's Christmas party?

Her Yes brought a round of cheers; and apparently the geniality goes both ways.

"I was impressed by [the students'] organization, and the quality of their questions," says Sister Karen, referring to her interviews, "and I liked their sophistication and aggressiveness."

For the student senate, Sister's appearance at a meeting and her general availability has been encouraging. "I was pleased to have the chance to talk to her one-on-one. You don't get the chance to talk to your college president that often," said Maria Avila, senate chair. "And she has a down to earth personality. I enjoyed talking to her." Amy Kuhnert, ASB president, wrote a thank you note after Sister's visit. "The students were happy about it," she said.

Midwestern President Is a Departure

The students, who had already interviewed the presidential candidates last spring, were well aware that their new Minnesotan president was "from away." The college charter requires that its president must be a Carondelet Sister, (so the field of candidates actually includes seven American St. Joseph of Carondelet provinces, covering the continental U.S., and including Peru, Hawaii and Japan). Yet The Mount presidents historically have come, if not from the college itself, at least from the Los Angeles province, covering five states.

However, St. Catherine's nuns are really not strangers to the Mount, the colleges having exchanged teachers for some 50 years. And Sister Karen in particular knows Mount St. Mary's, having been a trustee of the college since 1988.

She also knows administration. She was director of 600 Carondelet nuns in the St. Paul province for six years, and executive director of the National Federation of [the six] Carondelet Colleges for three years, as well as academic dean at St. Catherine's for eight years.

New Cultural Experience

"At St. Catherine's 85% of the students were traditional age and typical Minnesota," says Sister Karen. However, at the Mount the student cultural mix is about one-third white, a quarter African-American, Asian/Pacific Islander and international, and over one-third Latino. Sister Karen is excited about this change for her, recognizing the college's success with multicultural education and looking forward to more contributions the Mount can make in this area.

SISTER ANNE MARIE

After the Christmas choral concert performed in Carondelet Chapel, musicians and guests drove to a festive reception in the campus center. By invitation, Sister Karen who has a fine soprano voice, harmonizes over a carol or two with Amy Kuhnert, associated students' president at Chalon, and Maria Avila, president of the student senate. Both young women are members of the Mount Singers, conducted by Frank Brownstead.

And part of her enthusiasm comes from a hope that perhaps she herself can be involved in this in more than an administrative way. With a doctorate in history from UC Berkeley, and post-doctoral research in Spain, Sister Karen has taught European and Latin American history for St. Catherine's, around her stint as dean, 1962 to 1987.

A background in Latin American history and culture (she calls herself "comfortable" if not fluent, speaking Spanish) gives Sister at least an immediate sense of a commonality here, and potentially a part in the continuing addition of new cultural themes to the curriculum. Latina students, take note.

Nothing Less than Excellence

The Mount students' very positive first impression on Sister she ascribes in part to the leadership program. Clearly it is a part of the college Sister Karen admires and intends to foster. She explained her commitment to leadership as part of a women's education process saying that nothing less than excellence will bring the desired result.

Though co-ed educational competition has such generous endowments, large facilities and government backing, Sister Karen spoke admiringly of the Mount's multicultural educational success: a high proportion of students' persisting to achieve a degree, either associate in arts or baccalaureate.

On the day of our interview Sister Karen had just received word of a $35,000 grant award from The Consortium for Advancement of Private Higher Education (CAPHE). The grant is being directed by Nancy Burstein at the Doheny campus, where she is director of the elementary and special education department. Funding will go toward stipends for current faculty and for consultants for the purpose of infusing multicultural perspectives into the academic (undergraduate) preparation for teachers. The post-baccalaureate, or professional teacher training, is already well diversified, Burstein explained. Faculty will consider subject matter ranging from the variety of ways people learn to a more culturally balanced literature in the liberal studies, to possibly unrecognized biases in faculty and students themselves. "We are trying to help students really understand what it is to live in a pluralistic society—as we all actually do," Burstein reminded us.

"The mission within our mission is to prepare teachers to succeed in work with the total community," concluded Sister Karen. The Mount couldn't match the needs of its changing Los Angeles community any better.

Sister mentioned another recent grant dealing with a related topic, this one an $80,000 award from the Ford Foundation to study Doheny's two-year program as a model for private colleges with multicultural enrollments. The results will be shared with 14 colleges around the country. "We have the key to critical issues for American cities," Sister said, "one of which is getting the minorities into the mainstream."

Presidential Goals

While much of a president's first year must be spent in researching what is here, Sister Karen has early set forth two major goals. One is to stabilize enrollment. "Numbers of full-time undergraduates have fluctuated," she says, and with an enrollment-driven budget this is necessarily an urgent matter.

In another budget-related area, she is also beginning an assessment of the capacity of the college to expand. In December, Sister Karen was appointing a committee to look into possibilities for more adult education programs, among other ideas.

Long range are plans for increasing endowments and seeing to capital needs, a task in which Sister Karen is aided by chancellor and former president, Sister Magdalen Coughlin.

When we asked Sister Karen for her outlook for the Mount's future she responded optimistically. "I think an outstanding characteristic of the college is that it is dynamic. It seems fresh, able to change and adapt to rapid changes in its community, and in education to embrace change."

According to a package of information developed by the Women's College Coalition, September 1989, private women's colleges have been identified as preparing a greater percentage of teachers than co-ed colleges, and a greater percentage of science, math and economics majors. We must continue this emphasis, said Sister Karen, and it is a daunting task, given the relatively slim resources of a small private college (she referred to the college financial report printed in this issue).

In The 90's— Creative Leadership

The Mount has the key to critical issues: moving women with a wide variety of ethnic backgrounds into the mainstream, as leaders. We asked Sister, as we look to the last decade of a century of tremendous change, to give us a watchword for the college. "Creative Leadership," she responded. "The Mount must produce women from a multitude of cultural backgrounds who not only can succeed in their chosen fields, but who will also share with others the truth that what we think and are and know is only of benefit when used in service to our communities and to each other." □

Tribute, for Sister Magdalen

On April 14 at Doheney, a group of Sister Magdalen's friends underwrote a gala tribute recognizing her 13 years as president and initiating a new scholarship program named in her honor. Nearly 500 attended.

In the National News

Covers from three national magazines graphically represent the recent role of Mount St. Mary's across the country. In the July VITAL SPEECHES, listing George Bush at the top, Magdalen Coughlin is among the nine other speakers giving "the best thought of the best minds on current national questions."

Her title page reads: Minority and Disadvantaged Students [in the College, Community and Business], By Magdalen Coughlin, C.S.J., President of Mount St. Mary's College, Delivered to the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, Plenary Session of the 1989 Annual Meeting, February 2, 1989. In developing her theme, higher education's response to accessing minorities, new immigrants and the disadvantaged into the mainstream of America's economic, political and cultural life, Sister Magdalen draws upon examples from her own college. In conclusion she says, "...it is enormously rewarding to watch the progress and success of students who never dreamt a college education could be theirs."

The December issue of CHANGING TIMES, Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine, has the education & business feature extolling "Little-Known Gems in Higher Education—13 small colleges among a handful of mostly unheralded schools that are a better educational buy than many schools with big reputations." Besides a profile of the Mount, the magazine includes a four-color picture entitled "Mount St. Mary's: Helping women become leaders."

In their 1990 annual college guide, U.S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT comes out with a red Special Report sticker on the geographical division for the Pacific Coast, Texas, Oklahoma, and Hawaii—and there is Mount St. Mary's, one of the six of "America's best." Inside copy reflects the Mount as ranking fourth among 10 regional liberal-arts colleges, and touts these smaller colleges as "Marks of Distinction."

ALUMNAE

Meeting on Brady Patio, the Class of '69 stands up to their 20th. Committee who organized the reunion: Grace Kadner Wickersham, Janet Wolff Maulhardt, Cheryle Brandon Browning, and Nancy Chase Kallenberger.

Classics

Students and staff celebrate the Mount's birthday in the Circle at a party hosted by the alumnae.

'33 Helena Geier Keefe and family toured Boston and Nova Scotia. Helena's volunteer work at the hospice of Santa Paula was featured in the Santa Paula Chronicle's volunteer-of-the-week column.

'41 Irene Leveille Gardner journeyed to Guaranda, Ecuador, to meet her 13 year old foster child, Betty Ruiz.

Classmates congratulate MaryAnn Bonino on winning Outstanding Alumna Award: Kathryn Schott Lewicki, Betty Jordan Zareone, MaryAnn, Diane Souva Haggerty, Rosanna Smith Hile, Phyllis Lieb Ambrose, and Katherine Covelli Gray.

'46 Garland O'Rourke Parten was selected distinguished staff member in recognition of her expertise as executive assistant to the USI academic senate.

'51 Eloise Martinez Helwig is temporarily in San Francisco as campaign director of the $10.5 million capital campaign for Congregation Enunu-El, the oldest and largest Jewish temple in northern California.

'51 Gerry Biggs McGrath met Joan Carey Garvin '56 at the national convention of Kappa Gamma Pi in San Diego. Gerry has retired from teaching at the minor seminary and looks forward to traveling with her choir to Rome in July 1990.

'53 Gloria Day Thiele opened an education book and toy store, Discovery Garden, in Grass Valley, working with two daughters and one son. Last year was punctuated with the birth of grandchildren eight and nine, plus the publication of two poems in New York Poetry Anthology.

'54 Moving from Inglewood after 20 years, Pat Quinn Hart is settled in a townhouse in El Segundo and is the office manager in the financial aid office at Daniel Freeman Hospital's paramedic school.

'56 Bee Benko Grabow completed her ten year pilgrimage to the major early American historical sites from Jamestown VA, to Fort Ticonderoga NY.

'56 Career has sent Marlene Huhn Farrell throughout the world. Last year, Marlene taught a state board review in Hawaii, followed by a presentation in Frankfurt, Germany, on crisis intervention. She then traveled to Indonesia to perform a site visit on a potential program for the nursing dept. at CSULA.

'57 Nancy Mack Gallivan has been studying French and Spanish at UCIrvine, a study that has helped her keep pace with her children's far-flung worldwide activities.

'59 Gloria Strangman Doran works as a school nurse in Simi Valley.

Alums Consulting On Students' Careers

The career planning center, under director Rebecca Mattson, is establishing a Career Consultant Program consisting of alumnae and friends of the college. The program will be comprised of a resource bank of volunteers to whom the students may turn with questions regarding careers or career preparation.

A student may utilize the program to ask questions about training or experience, level of education, of how to get a start in a particular career. It is anticipated that this would involve a short informal interview, possibly 15 minutes in length. The student is making the contact only to get advice and is not asking for a job.

The first step in developing a resource bank is underway as Mattson sent a letter in January to alumnae asking for interested persons to complete a survey and return it to the center. With the addition of interested parents and friends of the college, Rebecca expects the consultant program to provide a variety of persons and positions to satisfy the inquiries of the Mount students.

'La Fête' in April

Fashions, fun and festivity await alumnae and guests at the twenty-eighth annual benefit luncheon and fashion show, "La Fête," in the Grand Ballroom of the Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel on Saturday, April 21, at 11:30 a.m. Proceeds will benefit students at Mount St. Mary's through financial assistance and scholarships.

The fashion show will be presented by Bullock's Northridge and promises a range of spring and summer fashions suiting the fancy and needs of a variety of ages and tastes. Coordinating with Bullock's are co-chairs Arlene Macasaet '86 and Claudia Ruiz '87.

They are assisted by a committee of volunteers: Gail Flood '88, Carla Ruiz '85, Dawna Percer '82, Stephanie Weck '86, Lisa Overby '89, Patricia Dominguez-Ellis '81, Mary Jo Blowers '89, Amy Dario '79 and Monica Quintero '89. Complementing the fashion show will be a raffle offering valuable and attractive prizes.

'60 Linda Ruby Bolstad traveled to St. Louis for a reunion of teachers she worked with in Germany 25 years ago.

'60 Lucinda Power Wallace and her husband participated in the first European Hot Air Airship Championship competition in France during the summer.

'63 Barbara Palumbo Farhart, who lives in Cohoes NY, became a storyteller for the New York Capital District. Her work includes gathering appropriate folktales for institutionalized adolescents.

'67 Melody King Chasen has opened a third art gallery in San Francisco and a new gallery in Maui.

'68 Now that Rose Mary Carroll Johnson has completed editing the proceedings of the 8th conference of the North American Nursing Diagnosis Association, she will edit the association's journal, Nursing Diagnosis.

'69 Cheryle Brandon Browning finished a joint masters and administrative credential program for mentor teachers at CSULA. Cheryle spoke at the American Federation of Teachers National Convention in Washington D.C. on the topic of mentoring beginning teachers, a subject also covered in a book she has co-authored. Her text is being used across the country in training new teachers. In her other pursuits, Cheryle continues to sing professionally and recently performed in Costa Rica and Belize.

'69 Both a mother and graduate student, Ellen Dowd Stang cares for her two year old daughter and studies in the graduate clinical psychology department of CSUNorthridge.

'69 Diane Lorenzetti Powell works as a chemist in the applications development department at Beckman Instruments in Brea.

'69 Mary Gail Northrop Royal nurses on the general surgical floor at Cincinnati V.A. Medical Center and finds time to volunteer for her church.

'69 Wai-Soo Wong Koo supported the Bush-Quayle presidential campaign in the Asian coalition division, and following the election, worked on the presidential transition team. After the political excitement, she began studies in counseling psychology.

'70 Sheila Cantwell went to two mountains for celebrations—climbing Mt. Whitney for her birthday and the Mount for her sister's graduation.

'70 Adrienne Poirier Shaheen is fulfilling a long-time wish of studying interior design.

'73 Michelle Brooks Burke is surrounded by fellow Mount classmates while doing volunteer work at St. Edward's parish in Dana Point. Husband Dan is starting a water company in Shasta and is busy with an Orange County real estate development firm.

'73 Evelyn Pizano Hannigan works at UCLA Neuropsychiatric Hospital, where she was named nurse of the quarter. Evelyn teaches classes in adult development and the process of aging, and dementia and depression in the elderly.

'73 Mary Corty O'Connor is a critical care clinical instructor at Anaheim Memorial Hospital.

'76 Ellen Weisenberg Blackstock works in the advanced cardiac life support unit at Methodist Hospital. Ellen teams with her husband on the board of St. Rita School in Pasadena.

'76 Jane Schaner Moore held her annual pig roast and auction attended by 200 people. This function in her backyard benefits a different charity every year.

'77 Edna Dodson Dixon is a casualty medical specialist for the USAA insurance firm in San Antonio. Edna attends Our Lady of the Lake University in a master's degree program on counseling psychology.

'78 Donna Aras Janulaitis is a school nurse for the Santa Monica school district.

'78 Deborah Dudenhoeffer Kessler, a newly-promoted major in the Army Nurse Corps, became head nurse of a multi-service surgical ward at the U.S. Army Hospital in Landstuhl, West Germany.

'79 Cindy Burns Lee is teaching in the family practice residency program at Fort Ord Army Hospital.

'79 Anneliese Rambow is taking life easy in London after working for seven years in Abu Dhabi and Saudi Arabia as a nursing supervisor.

'81 Barbara Kucia Condrey is employed as an information specialist with Amdahl Corporation in northern California.

CLASSICS: MARGARET HORST PHOTOGRAPHS

Three generations turn out for Founders' Day: Jill Crevier (a current re-entry student), her daughter Mary Crevier Sabatasso '72 and granddaughters Teresa and Francesca.

'82 Deborah Green White journeyed from Truckee for a mini-reunion with alums Susan Gayek Donckels and Jane Dong-Yu.

'83 While raising three children, Ana Figueroa-Levy works in public health and was selected Orange County employee of the month last July. She also teaches infant care and disaster preparedness classes through the Red Cross.

'85 Jacqueline Meulenkamp Bell is the clinical director of physical therapy at Redlands Community Hospital.

'87 Claudia Ruiz teaches kindergarten at Lassen Elementary School in Sepulveda, and is working on a master's degree and a special education credential in learning handicap among culturally diverse students.

'87 Edith Arellano is coordinator of provider relations for the Los Angeles office of Maxicare.

Alumnae who have represented the college at academic celebrations throughout the country are: Rosalie Fraga McVay '74 at the Agnes Scott Centennial Celebration in Georgia; Carol Hricik Ule '69 at Notre Dame of Ohio; Marygail Kinzer Hutchins '61 at Drexel Univ. in Philadelphia; and presidents' inaugurations: Lucy Cohen '56 at Georgetown; Sheryl Dowell '84 at Babson College in Boston; Ann Finnegan Gish '67 at Centre College in Kentucky; Diane Tonks Mackin '73 at Brigham Young.

Requiescant

The prayers of the alumnae are requested for the repose of the souls of:

'31 husband of Inez DeHetre Lasich

In the McIntyre Residence at Doheny

Resident assistant Felicia Turner tallies votes on dorm decorations, but actually everyone wins—taking home for Christmas the photographs, samples and grand memories. Tucker is a pre-med student taking classes on both campuses. Her devotion to science began when she attended the Medical Magnet at Lincoln High, Burbank.

Coast to Coast during mid-winter break, 30 students like Chris Cieshuski and Ruby Tsang are recruiting-ambassadors to their hometown high schools. Cieshuski, a nursing major, goes into Buffalo, to Grand Island; Tsang, an experienced travel agent even before she became a business administration major, to Sacred Heart Cathedral Prep, San Francisco.

Spirit Week in McIntyre brings out tinsel, lights, dimensional designs and headfuls of ingenuity to display on three floors of walls, ceilings and doors. Japanese roommates show what they can do with calligraphy, origami and a samurai alarm that talks only their language. Visiting commuter Sumiko Kado, comes from Mie; Chizumi Hamaguchi, from Tsu; Tomoyo Nagachi, from Tokyo.

If it's January, it's...

Little Theater at Chalon

"Music! Music! Music!" will open on the coordinating board of the MSMC Network, rivaling all the national ones. So, let the races begin, the nights of March 23, 24—in the Little Theater at Chalon. Everyone's invited.

Jin Park, though, has been painting since January for this year's Spring Sing, an annual showcase for students' talent—student written, directed, produced.

Guadalupe Day is always a memorable December 12. Students working with Sister Aline Marie, foreign language professor, and campus ministry personnel prepare a Mass in chapel and food treats with their precise ethnic names. Liberation in the oppressed Central American countries was the prayer theme this year.

Maria Valdivia (far right) was the enthusiastic student coordinator.
